

Sustainability Project Manager (m/f/d)

Are you looking for career opportunities within a global growing real estate company?

Then you might be our next Sustainability Project Manager (m/f/d) in Berlin.

Join us and be a part of our journey.

work description

- support projects and action plans for sustainability targets achievement
- support environmental and social risk assessments
- identify and support implementation of measures for business ethics, health and environmental protection and resources efficiency in the operations

- monitor and evaluate local and global sustainability performance and support sustainability reporting
- support the establishment of a global corporate sustainability management system
- create procedures, instructions, guidelines and other management system documentation

- support compliance with environmental and social responsibility management standards and policies
- research and identify innovative solutions for continuous sustainable performance improvement
- support stakeholder engagement and communication activities regarding corporate responsibility and sustainability

who you are

- university degree in engineering, environmental science, corporate social responsibility or related fields
- work experience on sustainability-related, environmental and social issues
- good knowledge of environmental, quality and social management systems based on international standards

- excellent communication skills
- strong sense of responsibility and the ability to work independently and precisely
- experience participating in multi-stakeholder projects
- experience in construction or property management is a plus

what we offer you

At Akelius you get work-life balance, an inspiring workplace, flexible working hours and big responsibility within a flat organization.

In a helpful and open environment, we develop together as specialists and managers. That is why we shape our staff with first class education at Akelius Business School.

how to apply

Please send your application to career@akelius.de including your latest CV.

You find further information on www.akelius.de.

about Akelius

Akelius acquires, upgrades and manages residential properties. The company owns 47,000 apartments in Sweden, Denmark, Germany, France, England, Canada and the US.

Akelius concept is Better Living.

This means that Akelius upgrades residential units to a quality level with newly constructed apartments.

We build our own applications and create our own technology. Akelius also helps people in need around the world by Akelius Foundation's charity work.