

Backend Developer TypeScript (m/f/d), Berlin

Are you looking for career opportunities within a global growing real estate company?

Then you might be our next Backend Developer TypeScript (m/f/d).

Join us and be a part of our journey.

work description

- developing in a serverless TypeScript environment
- product is a single page application for construction project management and order management for construction material
- applications shall be used in seven countries
- applications need to exchange data with lots of other applications and services
- the application replaces an existing application, complexity may be challenging

who you are

- profound experience in backend or full-stack development
- database design and development
- understand software architecture
- deep knowledge of JavaScript is required
- experience in TypeScript is a plus
- knowledge of API development
- experience of GraphQL is a plus
- fluent English, speaking German or Swedish is a plus

what we offer you

At Akelius you get work-life balance, an inspiring workplace, flexible working hours and big responsibility within a flat organization.

In a helpful and open environment, we develop together as specialists and managers. That is why we shape our staff with first class education at Akelius Business School.

how to apply

Please send your application to career@akelius.de including your latest CV. You find further information on www.akelius.de.

about Akelius

Akelius acquires, upgrades and manages residential properties. The company owns 47,000 apartments in Sweden, Denmark, Germany, France, England, Canada and the US.

Akelius concept is Better Living. This means that Akelius upgrades residential units to a quality level with newly constructed apartments.

We build our own applications and create our own technology. Akelius also helps people in need around the world by Akelius Foundation's charity work.