

Frontend Developer Angular – mobile applications (m/f/d), Berlin

Are you looking for career opportunities within a global growing real estate company?

Then you might be our next Frontend Developer (m/f/d) in our more than 170 people strong Technology department.

This position is in a cross-functional international team which develops mobile applications to support our business in Europe and North America.

Join us and be a part of our journey.

work description

- developing web applications and mobile applications
- design features and applications
- collaborate with your team members and stakeholders in an agile environment

who you are

- experience in frontend development
- responsive design, cross-browser and mobile development
- knowledge in Angular 2+ / ES2015+ / TypeScript

- one or more of the following technologies are beneficial:
Ionic, SCSS, Jest, Karma
- continuous deployment experience with Jenkins or Travis is a plus
- agile mindset and team player mentality
- fluent English, speaking German or Swedish is a plus

what we offer you

At Akelius you get work-life balance, an inspiring workplace, flexible working hours and big responsibility within a flat organization.

In a helpful and open environment, we develop together as specialists and managers. That is why we shape our staff with first class education at Akelius Business School.

how to apply

Please send your application to career@akelius.de including your latest CV. You find further information on www.akelius.de.

about Akelius

Akelius acquires, upgrades and manages residential properties. The company owns 47,000 apartments in Sweden, Denmark, Germany, France, England, Canada and the US.

Akelius concept is Better Living.

This means that Akelius upgrades residential units to a quality level with newly constructed apartments.

We build our own applications and create our own technology. Akelius also helps people in need around the world by Akelius Foundation's charity work.